Sciton Laser and Light Treatments
For the Full Spectrum of Skin Types

All Skin is Beautiful and Unique

Determining your client's skin type is the first step to achieving great results with Sciton's award-winning treatment brands.

This guide will help you select the most appropriate Sciton treatment(s) for your patients.

How to identify a patient's skin type

Skin tone isn't the only factor when classifying a patient's skin type on the Fitzpatrick scale. It's equally important to understand a patient's ethnic origin and how their skin reacts to the sun, including any history of histamine reactions, post-inflammatory hyperpigmentation (PIH), and scarring.

Use this skin type questionnaire and skin conditions matrix on the back cover as a guide when choosing the best Sciton treatment(s) for your patients.

This booklet provides a general set of guidelines to reflect skin type variations in range. It is by no means an exclusive representation of what all skin types look like. Each client should be assessed individually, and in some instances, it may be beneficial to test an area before proceeding with treatment.

Fitzpatrick Scale

The Fitzpatrick scale classifies skin type based on the amount of melanin in the skin and the skin's reaction to sun exposure.
